the name is new... but the face is the same

A merger's a bit like getting married. We're still getting used to our new name — Fidelity National. But though we sound different, we still look the same. You'll find the same friendly hometown folks you're used to dealing with. And the only difference our increased size makes, is the ability to offer you more services, provide greater resources for area business and industry.

Come in and pay us a visit — but don't be surprised if, like the new bride, we answer to our old name once in a while.
